Redefining Retirement™

“Society today is hypercognitive: it places inordinate emphasis on people’s powers of rational thinking and memory. Therefore, Alzheimer’s disease and other dementias, raise many dilemmas. How are we to view — and value — persons deprived of what some consider the most important human capacities?”

—Dr. Stephen Post

Stephen G. Post, Ph.D. is a researcher, leading expert, best-selling author, and transformative speaker on how caregivers find meaning and hope in caring for the deeply forgetful, and how positive psychology and spirituality enhance health. He has been quoted in more than 3000 national and international newspapers and magazines and has been interviewed on television and radio news shows, including National Public Radio (NPR), ABC 20/20, Nightline with John Stossel, The Daily Show with John Stewart, Talk of the Nation, The Mehmet Oz Show, and has even addressed the U.S. Congress.

As author of The Moral Challenge of Alzheimer Disease, Stephen provides thought-provoking and useful information on major issues related to developmental cognitive disabilities and dementia. He offers a comprehensive picture of the Alzheimer’s patient, the caregiver, and the caregiving relationship, and presents a series of well-founded practical recommendations to the complexities of the disease and strategies for successful coping.

His writing has resulted in conferences in seven countries and forty states as well as the recipient of the Distinguished Service Award from the national Alzheimer’s Association for his contributions to the lives of “the deeply forgetful” and their loved ones.
